Big Vote Turnout Seen

Blast Rocks Store

CHICAGO — A black powder bomb exploded in the basement toy section of a far South Side branch of a Goldblatt Brothers store while it was thronged with noon hour crowds yesterday.

One person was killed and eight others, including three from one family, were injured in the blast which tore 15 small holes in the ceiling. Bits of human flesh were spattered against the walls and floor. Trains, dolls and other toys littered the area.

Lady Churchill Weak

LONDON — Hospital officials said the condition of Lady Clementine Spencer Churchill, widow of Sir Winston, weakened late yesterday "giving rise to anxiety."

Lady Churchill, who celebrated her 84th birthday April 1, underwent an operation at Westminster Hospital Friday after falling in her home, breaking her thigh.

Karp 'Satisfactory'

HOUSTON — A Skokie, Ill. salesman, Haskell Karp, late last night was in satisfactory condition following medical science's first swap of an artificial heart for a human organ.

Dr. Denton A. Cooley who performed the operation said he is "optimistic about the outcome." Four hours after the operation, Karp sat up in bed and talked to his wife.

Air Ferry Service

MADISON — Gov. Warren P. Knowles authorized the attorney general's office to "Take such action as you deem necessary in this matter . . . to protect the interests of the state of Wisconsin," in a plan to provide a unique air service between Milwaukee and Chicago.

Under the plan, Universal Airlines Co. has asked the Civil Aeronautics Board to approve service by which "jumbo jets" would transport automobiles and their passengers between the two cities.

Ray Seeks New Trial

MEMPHIS — Attorneys for James Earl Ray, convicted of slaying Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., have filed motions for a new trial on grounds that Ray has been used by his attorneys to peddle his story to magazines, books and motion pictures.

In motions signed by Ray's three new attorneys, the 41-year-old convict claimed that he was forced to plead guilty to the April 4, 1968 sniper slaying because of pressure from his attorneys.

Obscenity Law Ruling

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court has overturned Georgia's obscenity law which makes possession of pornographic material a crime, ruling that a person has a right to "satisfy his intellectual and emotional needs in the privacy of his own home."

In another action, the court ruled that states will be allowed virtually no deviation from population averages in congressional redistricting under the "one man, one vote" doctrine.

Ask Return to Work

DETROIT — The Ruling body of the United Auto Workers took control of a local union yesterday in an attempt to force its members to end a wildcat strike against Chrysler Corp. that threatened to idle half the hourly employees in Chrysler's North American auto plants by the end of the week.

Douglas Fraser, head of the UAW's Chrysler department, said "We think the fellows had a very, very good grievance." He added UAW will negotiate that grievance with Chrysler after a return to work.

Hint Troop Pullout

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers indicated the United States might unilaterally withdraw some of its forces from South Vietnam, but he added there was no such plan at present.

At his first formal news conference since taking office 10 weeks ago, Rogers gave the strongest hint yet of the possibility of withdrawal without demanding that the Communists do likewise as a means of ending the war.

2 Incumbents Unopposed

Although the two incumbent board members running for re-election in Dist. 15 are unopposed, they are still looking for a large voter turnout Saturday for two reasons: first, as a vote of confidence in the job they are doing, and second, as an indication of parent interest in the district.

Joel Meyer and Otto Eilering are running for three-year terms. When they were elected in 1966, they were opposed for one of the two seats by John Marks of Palatine. Meyer received 235 votes, while Eilering had 195 votes and Marks, 128. Meyer is seeking his fifth term and Eilering his second.

One of the biggest problems facing the district is that of adequate classroom space. With new housing developments, new children are coming into the district at a steady rate.

Concerning classroom space, the two candidates were asked at the recent candidates night what would happen if the private schools in the district closed due to lack of funds.

Meyer said the board was not aware that these schools would be closed, but that it would do everything possible to absorb the children.

EILERING said the district was "taxed to the limit of its bonding power" but if a parochial school closed, the board would "have to take care of those students in some way."

Eilering, in answer to a question about the lack of sidewalks in the immediate vicinity of some schools, said that the problem of safety is a "village responsibility."

"We can't take care of life," he pointed out, saying that the board is responsible for the children during school hours and "outside a 1½-mile zone."

A questioner at the candidates' night asked about the lack of some builders to donate land to the district for the purpose of building schools.

Meyer said that it is illegal for school boards to require payment from a developer, but many developers make arrangements to provide land or money.

"A developer has a moral obligation to provide land for schools since he brought children into the area," he said.

However, he pointed out, the developer must donate on a "voluntary" basis.

Eilering said that the developer in the Pepper Tree area has recently agreed to sell seven acres to the board for $8,000 an acre.

Cited by Jaycees

Ray Pettersen, a former president of the Rolling Meadows Jaycees, was given a life membership in the Jaycees at a recent meeting of the local chapter.

The award is one of the highest possible a Jaycee may receive.

William Pritts, president of the Rolling Meadows chapter presented the award to Pettersen after a unanimous vote from chapter members.

Pettersen joined the Jaycees in March,

1960. He was elected treasurer the following May and won the SPOKE award for service to the chapter by a first-year member of the Jaycees. He served as chairman of the Distinguished Service Award committee and the Teenage Road-E-O.

PETTERSEN WAS elected first vice president of the chapter in 1961. He won the Active Jaycee award that year when, as membership chairman, he brought 33 new members to the chapter.

He was appointed state director in 1962 and in May, 1963, was elected president of the local chapter.

In 1964 and 1965, Pettersen was state vice president and at the end of his term in 1966, he won the outstanding state vice president award.

When the Rolling Meadows chapter was on the verge of folding in 1967, Pettersen was appointed president and increased membership from nine to 28.

In addition to his service with the Jaycees, Pettersen has taught Sunday School at the Community Church and has been a Boys Baseball umpire, manager and coach. He was assistant Cubmaster for Pack 180 in 1966 and 1967.

Library Sets Vote Hearing

Last year, a $2.28 million referendum for a new site and building for the Palatine Public Library was defeated after bitter opposition. This year, the library has a new referendum before the public and intends to learn from the mistakes of the past.

"People said we didn't give them enough information last year," a library official said. A public hearing in the library at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday will give residents a chance to question board members and find out exactly what the referendum contains and what plans are for the future.

This year's referendum asks for voters to approve the sale of $235,000 in bonds for a site at the northwest corner of Wood and Brockway streets. If approved, the library will then make plans for the construction of a new building.

One of the principal objections last year was that the proposed site was right in the heart of downtown Palatine, "and would have taken a valuable piece of real estate off the tax rolls," the library official pointed out.

One question already asked, was if the library planned to purchase more than one site. Outgoing Pres. John Wassmer stated at the recent candidates night that only one site will be purchased. The library does not need a central library and a branch library, the audience was told.

Auto Strikes Tot In Front of Home

A 2½-year-old Rolling Meadows girl was in critical condition last night at Northwest Community hospital after being struck by a car in front of her home at 2206 Central Road.

Denise Smalley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smalley, was running across the street when struck by a car driven by an 18-year-old girl from Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows police said.

DENISE WAS rushed to the hospital by a Haire Funeral Home ambulance. Doctors said she suffered lacerations of the scalp, right side of the face and right side of her body.

Police said formal charges will not be made until the condition of the girl changes and after all the facts are in. The case is under investigation by the Rolling Meadows Traffic Division.

A GUIDING HAND is given a piece of the masonry facade that will adorn the new post office at Euclid and Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights. The building, which will serve customers in Arlington Heights, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows, will occupy 29,000 square feet — slightly more than half the size of a football field — and provide parking for 155 customers. Tentative date for occupancy is Aug. 1. The suburban northwest is undergoing something of a post office building boom, with one facility under construction in Des Plaines and another planned for Palatine.

Metal Is Putty in Sculptor's Hands

by MARTHA KOPER

When someone looks at a blank wall and gets 1,000 ideas it would be safe to guess he's an artist.

But Harold Kerr, a Palatine sculptor, who looked at the north wall of Palatine National Bank's main floor didn't need more than one idea to create the enamel sculpture pieces now adding that touch of creativity to the new building.

As suggested by the bank's president, Gerald Fitzgerald, Kerr designed and created a work of art symbolic of spring. As the seasons change, so will the enamel sculpture on the center of the wall. Already, he's working on a piece for Christmas and the winter season.

Kerr has been a sculptor since he "retired" when he was 16-years-old.

"You only work if you're doing something you don't like. When you like what you're doing, it can't be called work," he explained.

HE WAS STILL a teenager when he decided to spend the rest of his life creating things out of metal. Now, more than 30 years later, he's still doing what he likes to do and a lot of it.

Several metal sculptures in the area have been created by Kerr who says he doesn't try to put a message in his work.

But he conceded, "The work should evoke some kind of emotion in the onlooker."

Later, he also admitted, "In some way or another, I guess I try to get humor, satire and skepticism in my work."

There's a flight of birds he made of bronze located in Randhurst Shopping Center. Churches, public buildings and other institutions also have made use of his talents.

Kerr has been working on his own for the past 15 years. That's when he and his wife, Jane and their two sons moved to Palatine.

ATTACHED TO their home on Dundee Road is a fully equipped studio. There's also a room filled with his work on display for customer viewing as well as for purchase.

Underpass Would Top $900,000 Mark

A proposed underpass for Smith Street at the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks will cost more than $900,000.

After a three-month feasibility study, village engineers, Consoer and Townsend and Associates, submitted their report with an estimated cost of $904,000.

If considered financially feasible by village officials, the underpass most noticeably will mean a flow of traffic through the downtown area even when a train is present.

Since Palatine is in the unique position of having railroad tracks cross both the major north-south street and the major east-west street of town, village officials have been looking for a method of allowing traffic to continue moving when a train is at the depot.

AN UNDERPASS relates to both continued development of the downtown area and total traffic improvements recommended in the 1967 Thoroughfare Plan proposed by Barton-Aschman, traffic consultants.

The first big step toward finding a remedy was taken last December when the board of trustees directed village engineers to conduct a study.

Results of the study are expected to be discussed by the village board sometime this month.

Linked closely with the underpass and further downtown development is relocation of the railroad station to a spot north of the tracks west of Smith, and south of Colfax Street.

In July, Palatine officials made preliminary application for federal funds to help finance the project. Recently, they were asked to prepare a formal application for the funds which currently is being prepared by village administrators.

ALTHOUGH RELOCATION of the depot is not in the immediate future, determining the feasibility of a Smith Street underpass was considered necessary so both projects could be worked simultaneously, if the federal grant is approved.

Advertising Firm Opens

A public relations and marketing firm run by Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township GOP Committeeman, was recently granted articles of incorporation as a Mount Prospect business.

Chicago Associates, Inc., of 110 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has been chartered by the state "to deal in and with general management, marketing, community relations, etc." The firm also lists 211 E. Chicago Ave. as an address.

In addition to regular business, the firm may get the contract to handle advertising for the Illinois State Fair.

In a column in the Illinois State Register, a Springfield newspaper, the Robert Voegel Agency reportedly is receiving serious consideration by state fair manager Franklin Rust for the $50,000 advertising contract. In previous years, The Register reported, the Chicago firm of Heyne and Kennedy was given the contract, which is awarded without competitive bidding practices.

Affiliated with the Chicago firm is Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect. "Hansen has been lobbying with Ogilvie aides in an attempt to win the coveted contract," the Register said. "Rust has not yet signed on the dotted line, but the governor's office may influence his decision. Several other firms also may be under consideration."

Hansen worked in the governor's election campaign and once served as vice chairman of the county GOP Central Committee.

TODD CHRISTOFFEL is a 13-year-old cartoonist who creates his own comic strips and invents ideas for new games. His favorite character is Mr. Goof-Up, a stumble bum alien, who is the main character in many of Todd's comic strips.

Cartoon Veteran At 13

by JERRY DEZONNA

He'll be 13 years old next month, and already Todd Christoffel of Mount Prospect is a veteran at the drawing board.

His hobby is creating comic strip characters and inventing new ideas for Parker Brothers Games, Inc.

Todd has an imagination and an ability far beyond his age. He's a seventh grader at Dist. 59's Holmes Junior High School, and with the exception of one general art class, he's had no formal training with pen and paper.

"I started drawing when I was five years old," explained Todd. "My grandfather is a landscape painter, but I'm not too hot on doing landscapes or people paintings. I really like to draw animals the best."

Todd began experimenting with comic strip characters and cartoons about three years ago, and since then he's created more than 50 different picture stories.

"MY FAVORITE COMIC strip character is a crazy fellow that I've invented by the name of Mr. Goof-Up. He's an alien, a very versatile fellow who can get away with anything. He cracks sick jokes and makes many mistakes in life."

Mr. Goof-Up is a stumble bum who is constantly falling over his own two feet. He resembles a martian in appearance, and Todd has given him a very good insight on the American way of life.

Todd bases his cartoons on his readers' approval. "If someone finds my cartoons funny, I try to analyze what it is that made him laugh. Then I have a better idea on how to approach my next comic strip. I guess I learn by my mistakes."

The situations in his cartoons are based on everyday experiences. "I'll take a situation that is common to everyone, add a little imagination and exaggeration, and then build a story around it," he explained.

In his comic strips, he can make the unbelievable and unreal happen, and "I don't have to worry about explaining it because people will accept almost anything in a comic strip."

He enjoys the freedom in creating his own characters and getting them in and out of trouble at his own command. The most important quality in a comic strip should be harmony, he explained. The artistic detail and the dialogue must work together.

"CARTOONS ARE great," explained Todd, "because they can be powerful weapons for influencing public opinion. Humor can get a point across much better than a flat, dull statement. People accept and respect cartoons more now than in the past, and the medium is very versatile. There are very few restrictions."

Todd's favorite cartoonist is Charles Schultz, the man who created "Peanuts."

"Peanuts" is a great satire on children, explained Todd. The comic strip is fun because people regardless of their age can identify with Charlie Brown and Lucy and Peppermint Pattie.

In addition to drawing comic strips, Todd also has an interest for creating new games. He's submitted more than seven ideas to Park Brothers Games, and although the company hasn't accepted any of his ideas, he's received letters of encouragement.

One of his game ideas, called "The Gypping Game", is a dice contest in which the players try to amass as much money as possible by "illegal" methods. The rules are similar to Monopoly. "The game is really a satire on crime," explained the inventor, "because today it seems so easy for someone to commit a crime and get away without any punishment."

HIS OTHER IDEAS for games have touched a variety of subjects criticizing Communism and "Petty Prices", a game that takes a swipe at inflation and a rising economy.

Last month Todd entered a tempera drawing of a teddy bear which won first place in the Gold Key Scholastic Art contest at Wieboldt's store in the Randhurst Shopping Center.

"This is the first time that I've entered any of my drawings in a contest because I primarily draw just for my own enjoyment."

At present, the young cartoonist and artist has no plans for turning his hobby into a career.

"I think I agree with Mark Twain when he wrote that once a person takes his hobby and makes a career out of it, it loses all its enjoyment and fun."

Bunches Dance

The River Trails Park District will sponsor a dance for junior high school students Friday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Feehanville School on Kensington Road.

Students who live in the park district or attend River Trails Junior High, St. Emily's, or St. Alphonsus schools are invited to attend.

Music is by the rock group, "The Bunch." Tickets are 75 cents per person, and school clothes are required. For further information, call the park office at 296-4486.

Ordovensky States Stand

Clarification of position on morale problems in School Dist. 59 was made Monday by Patrick J. Ordovensky, a candidate for one of two seats on the board of education.

He said, "I have no information that Dr. (Richard) Vlasak is responsible for any of the problems besetting Dist. 59. Even if I had such information, I would not publicly disclose it."

"My desire as a candidate, which I underscored during our interview, is to make the people of the district aware of these problems without involving personalities."

Ordovensky was referring to a statement attributed to him in The Herald in which he "mentioned several cases involving Vlasak." The candidate said, "This does not say Dr. Vlasak is responsible for morale problems, but it leads readers to that conclusion."

VLASAK, the assistant superintendent for instruction, was discussed in the course of an interview with The Herald on March 24.

At that time, he noted incidents involving Vlasak and school principals and assistant principals, salary schedules, the director of student services, and district social workers.

Ordovensky at that time commented, "There is a deterioration of morale in his (Vlasak's) department, which might result in the loss of very valuable people."

Car Wash Set by Teenagers

Arlington Heights residents can pull into the Sinclair Service Station at Arlington Heights Road and Park Street today and get their cars washed and vacuumed for $1.

Members of the suburban Northwest branch of Project Christopher, described as North America's first junior Peace Corps, will be cleaning cars at the station from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Proceeds from the car wash will go into the group's fund to send teenagers to a two-week training camp. After their training, they will be assigned to an area, be required to find their own sleeping quarters and start their own service projects.

Members of Project Christopher raise money to pay for their traveling expenses and provide themselves with $1 a day for food.

Teams of teenagers in past summers have set up recreation programs in slums, taught on Indian reservations, and talked with people about their problems.

Tour Info Ready

The Mount Prospect Historical Society Friday will present a detailed tour of local points of historical interest in the village. The tour will be arranged so that anyone might take their children on a visit to sites of local historical importance.

Mrs. Victor Bittner, society president, said the executive board members will address a club meeting at South Church this week, and their talk will be the first public presentation of tour information.

"This isn't to be considered local history," Mrs. Bittner said, "but of course some of the history of the area is interwoven in the story of old buildings in the village and local landmarks."

She told The Herald that the society is encouraging members of old settlers' families to write their own histories. "We hope they will give us written material in some form that tells of their families' origins, the reasons they came here and the interesting stories of their settlement."

FOLLOWING THE debut of the tour paper, Mrs. Bittner said she hoped copies could be made available on a charge-out basis at the Mount Prospect library.

Material compiled for the tour came from many sources, she said, and she felt sure it was the most accurate account to date on early village development.

The material was checked with several early residents for accuracy. The Chicago Historical Society was also consulted.

Carter To Speak On Pro Football

Virgil Carter, quarterback for the Chicago Bears, will speak on "Pro Football and Life as Seen by an NFL Rookie" at the April 21 father-teen dinner at the First Presbyterian Church.

Sponsored by the Men's Club, the 6:30 p.m. program will also provide guitar folk music entertainment. Boys and girls are welcome at the session with fathers, at the church, 302 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights.

At Brigham Young University, Carter majored in statistics and was named "Academic All-American" for his last two years. He is now working on his master's degree in business administration at Northwestern University.

Active with the Bears last year, he suffered a fractured ankle in November which sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

Interested families are asked to make reservations at the church office early. Additional information may be obtained by calling the office at CL 3-0492.

Plan Reception To Celebrate OAS

The Pan American Board of Education and the Peruvian Arts Society will sponsor a reception to celebrate the 79th anniversary of the Organization of American States at 8 p.m. Friday in the Peoples Gas Co., Chicago.

Two Mount Prospect residents, Dr. William Lewis and Robert Beckwith, are members on the Pan American board of education. Dr. Lewis is a professor of electrical engineering at the Illinois Institute of Technology, and Beckwith is employed with Beckwith Engineering in Chicago.

THE RECEPTION will include a musical program and documentary films on Latin America. Refreshments will be served.

Anyone is invited to attend. Tickets are $50 for members and $1 for non-members.

Cardinal Drive PTA To Install Officers

Cardinal Drive School PTA will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday.

Merrill Wuerch, PTA president, will install new officers for the coming year.

Featured speaker, Mrs. E. Watts, will discuss the Clearbrook School in Rolling Meadows.

Musical entertainment will be provided by the Cardinal Chorus, under the direction of Maxine Cochran. Refreshments will be served.

Approve Expansion of Hospital

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, has received approval of its proposed expansion plans from the Hospital Planning Council for Metropolitan Chicago.

In giving its approval to the proposed expansion, the council justified its endorsement with the following:

—There is a pressing need for expanded hospital facilities to meet the requirements of a rapidly growing population and to serve an increasingly expert medical staff.

—The recognition that the hospital has outgrown its operating room, emergency and outpatient suites, and will shortly outgrow the space occupied by its X-ray and laboratory departments.

—The hospital's decision to expand in two phases, adding 336 medical-surgical beds in two stages of 168 beds each.

—THE DECISION to centralize storage space and distribution of supplies.

—The hospital's willingness to plan for a definite objective, which can be expanded in the future by building separate but connected facilities for the mentally ill, for "extended care" patients, and for a doctor's office building.

Computations compiled by Northwest's staff indicate that at present the hospital is seriously underbedded. The addition of 196 beds for a total of 391 by 1971 will just keep pace with population growth. By 1975 another 168 beds will be required if the hospital is to avoid overcrowding.

The hospital plans in its 1970 first stage to expand its low rise building, which now houses operating rooms, and emergency, outpatient, J-ray, laboratory, physical therapy and pharmacy services. This will be expanded to the east to add 15,321 square feet each to the first floor and the basement.

THIS BUILDING will abut a new nine-story high rise building to be constructed to the east. It will also be an extension to the north of the patient care wing which now includes the hospital's front door and waiting room.

The high-rise building will provide space for mechanical equipment in the basement and for an auditorium, physicians' lounge and library, medical records, conference room and offices on the first floor. During the first stage only four of the eight floors to contain patients' rooms will be completed. The other four floors will be shelved in, to be completed in the second phase, hopefully to be undertaken in 1974 or '75.

Also in the second stage, the hospital plans to expand its low rise building to the east to provide additional space for its X-ray and laboratory departments.

TOTAL SQUARE footage to be added with phase one is 122,000 (the size of about two and a half football fields). The second phase will add 80,600 (about the size of one and two thirds football fields).

Estimated costs for the construction are $5,948,000 for phase one and $3,924,000 for phase two. The hospital currently estimates, in addition to funds from contributions, grants and hospital reserves, it will need to borrow a quarter of a million dollars for each phase.

In concluding its report, the council stated, "Northwest Community Hospital has brought a thorough and thoughtful approach to examining its service area, population trends and alternative solutions to what has been determined to be a major need for expansion."

"THE RAPID GROWTH expected in the hospital's service area has been confirmed by government, business, and planning officials. The alternative solution that has been chosen to resolve the hospital's need for expansion combines effective use of space with what appears to be optimal functional efficiency."

The Way We See It

Soil Map Valuable

As these Northwest suburbs continue to spread across the map, more than ever they need some kind of logical formula to help guide their growth.

The problem is particularly acute involving unincorporated land between villages, with local officials having no control over its development and no guarantee that it will be used wisely.

Everyone agrees to the principle that "best use" is the goal, but best use to a village may be one thing, and to the county or a builder or a conservationist something entirely different.

The ideal, of course, would be some kind of overall master plan declaring acre-by-acre the progression that should be followed by each community and the county.

Short of that, and all the resistance it inevitably stirs, there is a framework that can determine what is best for the land, if not for everyone's personal inclination. On that framework, Cook County and these suburbs can hang their blueprint for the future.

The example is being set in nearby McHenry County, which soon will be the first county in the nation to have a zoning ordinance based on geologic conditions.

The key is soil mapping, the boring into the earth to determine — all over the county — exactly what kind of soil and geologic structure is underfoot.

From that, it can be told exactly what kind of development would be best suited to a particular piece of land, whether it would be homes and apartments, sewage facilities, farming, wildlife preserves, parks or playgrounds.

The information can be used either as a guideline in making zoning decisions, or — as in McHenry County — to write a rigid zoning ordinance that requires developers to comply with the code for their particular kind of soil and structure.

In either case, with the profile of a complete soil map, it can be predicted in advance what kind of problems may arise in developing a certain piece of land, and what kind of engineering techniques should be used in developing the land.

To cite one specific example, that kind of knowledge could prevent the springtime agony that crops up in towns like Palatine and Wheeling where homes have been nestled on floodplains.

Local communities and the county would both have a code to live by for general development, and a stronger basis for objections in individual zoning matters.

The problem is especially timely now because of the growth that accelerates daily, and because the county has the opportunity to get a thorough soil mapping job done quickly, professionally and cheaply.

The Northeast Illinois Soil Conservation Service has offered to do the soil testing for all of Cook County's 130,500 unincorporated acres. The job could be finished by 1972 or 1973, if begun now.

Cost would be 50 cents an acre, or $65,000 for the entire job. But that, under the SCS matching fund program, could be cut to $32,500, and the entire cost eventually could be passed on to developers.

Some communities — notably Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village — have already contracted for soil mapping within their own borders. Now the Cook County Board is mulling whether to take the SCS offer.

If the county so moves, it would particularly benefit the Northwest suburbs, which by consent would be the first mapped because of their singular growth rate.

There should be no hesitation. The county should move quickly to contract with the SCS and get on with the writing of a formula that will point the way to orderly growth over all its territory.

legitimate maneuvering for political power, with anyone challenging the right of the men in power to keep it.

That, you must have learned in your earliest civics books, is one of the noble features of the American system. But this other custom is an abomination, this abrupt appearance of candidates from the shadows, brimming with sound and fury in the run to the polls, and then — if they lose — retreating to the shadows, some until the next election, some never to be heard from again.

They are political activists for the duration of the campaign, and that is their particular evil, the indictment of their own sincerity.

THEIR EVIL is often compounded — as it was in Elia — because their appeal is often negative, the classic exhortation of, "Throw the rascals out!" The campaign gambit is not "how good we are," but "how bad they are," and the challengers come heavily armed, dropping innuendos and charges of mismanagement, blundering, even corruption.

It's the easiest kind of assault on the men in power, carried not by documentation but by the fervent hope that with a snappy slogan, a lot of vocalizing and a broad sword they can sweep out the bad guys.

The curiosity is that they can mask their concerns, questions and solutions so effectively in the years between elections. If their sentiments were legitimate, they could do their villages and townships a lot more good by being constant gadflies, by challenging the workings of the system between elections as well. They'd likely also build a firmer political base.

I HAVE to sympathize with those public officials who say, "If you put us through this every four years, you're not going to find many good men to run for your offices."

And I have to wonder how we can expect the voters to know any better.

The remarkable thing is that so often they do. You showed 'em this time, daddy.

Knox Notes

Dad Won/Lost Election

by KEN KNOX

Daddy won again, and of course I'm delighted.

But a bitterness lingers after the playing out of another episode in the American electoral process.

Daddy is a tax assessor — has been for 17 years — in Elia Township up in Lake County. He's just been through — for the fifth time — the ritual that will keep him in the job for another four years, and he won big enough that he too should have been delighted.

I SUPPOSE he was, but he couldn't permit himself to show it until first he had acquitted himself of his own bitterness: "I'm glad this one is over."

He said more, but that's enough for the point here.

And the point is that there is something gravely wrong with politics on the local level in this country, something beyond the apathy and disinterest over which we usually wring our hands.

If last week's Elia Township episode were unique, it wouldn't be worth mention beyond that township's border. But it does represent something much broader and more serious, and you may draw whatever parallels you wish in your own township or village or park board election, or any other contest in which men compete against each other for public favor.

There was one issue in the Elia campaign that transcends all borders — the phenomenon of candidates from the shadows. In brief, it manifests itself like this:

IN ELIA, four incumbents — daddy among them — and two newcomers were challenged head-to-head by another slate for the six positions open.

As might be expected in rural township elections, there weren't many issues of genuine substance, the basic question being one of past performance vs. the need for a change.

But one issue did stick. It was documented — easily — that of six challengers, only one — a candidate for auditor — had shown enough interest in past township affairs to even bother attending the monthly township meetings.

THE MAN at the head of the ticket — bidding for supervisor — had been seen only at the annual town meetings in the four years since the previous election. The others didn't attend at all in the four years, except for one who popped up at a monthly meeting after he declared himself in the race for another of the auditor's jobs.

The contradiction was obvious: the challengers wanted to run the township and pledged that they had the solutions to the township's problems, and yet they didn't volunteer their attendance at the meetings when those very problems were up for debate and decision.

The inconsistency came full circle on election day. In the evening, when the polls were closed and the votes counted, the challengers — then the losers — failed to appear at the annual town meeting. The order of business: passage of the budget for the next year, a matter of several hundred thousand dollars.

THEIR ABSENCE was incredible, and as it turned out, amusing to the citizens who did show.

There is a message there. Daddy notwithstanding, I have no dispute with the

Prospectus

An Unlovely Wart, Lanced

by JAMES VESELY

A victory of some sort was won in Mount Prospect last weekend. The Crystal Ship was closed.

The coffee house barred its doors for the last time and it seemed as if the old place heaved a sigh of relief to be through with the troubles of suburban life.

THE DEMISE OF Mount Prospect's coffee house came about as a result of many attacks by church members and area residents. But it also collapsed from within. In its last stages, the Crystal Ship was just a ghost of what it was intended to be, just a poor facsimile of what it should have been.

As originally intended, the Crystal Ship was supposed to be a place for dialogue between dissident youths and adults of the community. But the dialogue, for a change, was to be done on the youth's terms, in a place conducive to conversation. Sure, the music was loud and the place was dark. The walls were covered with graffiti representing the New Left. Despite the graffiti and some of the early magazines and the black walls, the Crystal Ship was not a Communist cell, nor was it some dive filled with the drunken flotsam of local teen clubs.

The Crystal Ship was a place where you were asked to accept a younger generation on its own terms, without the paraphernalia of suburban status symbols that characterizes many teen clubs.

BUT THERE IS a good segment of Mount Prospect residents who saw something else in the Crystal Ship. They saw kids asking questions about today's values and called that Communism. They saw a dark hole instead of a church-sponsored mission. And they saw young kids searching for answers as a threat to the stability of an entire community.

The real involvement of Mount Prospect's Establishment in the killing of the Crystal Ship will probably never be known.

It is evident that the Mount Prospect police did not like the place and were suspicious of its purpose. The fact that at least one church member called in the FBI to discuss the place also shows the seriousness with which some residents considered the Crystal Ship.

The plot got thicker when a leader of the fight to close the Ship said that Marvin Johnson, FBI special agent in Chicago, was once a member of the Community Presbyterian Church and that his wife played the organ there.

But the FBI did not close the place, nor did the local police or the village clerk, although he nailed the lid on it.

THE CRYSTAL SHIP was closed by overwhelming indignation that such a coffee house could exist in a suburb as nice as Mount Prospect. Sure, those places are in Chicago, just an hour away, but not in Mount Prospect. We are different out here. Our kids are different, too, they don't go for that stuff.

On their part, the sponsors and operators of the Crystal Ship made their own mistakes. The coffee house should have taken greater precautions to conform to the fire codes. They should have been absolutely sure of their legal grounds to charge admission and sell beverages.

And most of all, they should have realized that you don't storm the political and social values of the suburbs in such a blatant way and expect to get away with it.

THE CRYSTAL SHIP also deteriorated into a substitute for a movie balcony. The customers kept getting younger and younger and the dialogue between adults and teens closed down to a trickle. In its last weeks, the talk in the Crystal Ship was more junior high school gossip than meaningful debate between generations.

Fortunately, the end of the Crystal Ship was sounded amid the general success of the Hunger Hike. The Ship's last gasp served some purpose by providing more funds for the Hike.

In effect, the Crystal Ship was a wart on the side of Mount Prospect's impression of itself. The body politic of the village had the wart lanced. Now everything is beautiful again.

Palatine Today

The Questions Need Answers

by ED MURNANE

Residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are hearing a familiar voice as Saturday's board of education election approaches.

It belongs to Richard Chierico, Palatine resident, a former teacher at Palatine High School and currently a candidate for the Dist. 211 board.

CHIERICO WAS defeated in a similar election bid last year.

His candidacy was based on his dissatisfaction with a number of Dist. 211's policies and actions.

He and two other candidates raised numerous questions and leveled some pretty strong charges, which they called "Grim Fairy Tales from the Unbelievable Never-Land of High School Dist. 211."

For the most part, the charges and questions were dismissed by present board members and administrators. Chierico was a loudmouth trying to cause trouble, and the voters would realize it.

WHETHER THAT was the case or not, Chierico was defeated handily in his first bid for election.

One of the arguments against him was that most of his criticism of the board and administration came only at election time; that he had not been as concerned with policies and practices in Dist. 211 during the non-election time of the year.

This writer criticized Chierico and his running mates for just this practice.

This year, Chierico is again running, and running on basically the same complaints as last year.

Again, the present board members and administrators have either ignored or denied the charges and accusations he's making.

SO STRONG IS the case against Chierico by the present Dist. 211 power structure that two incumbents, James Humphrey and William Fremd, have joined with candidate Carolyn Mullins in an obvious attempt to make sure Chierico is not elected.

Mrs. Mullins, a former reporter for a local newspaper, covered the school board meetings in Schaumburg Dist. 54 and also attended several Dist. 211 meetings. She has been quoted as saying the present Dist. 211 board is doing a good job.

The board and the district may very well be doing a good job.

STUDENTS ARE graduating from Dist. 211 schools every year, and the colleges have not sent any of them back for more schooling, so apparently they can stand next to graduates of other high schools and not display any obvious weaknesses.

But some of the questions and charges raised by Chierico hint that the fine education students are receiving may not be coming in the most economical fashion.

The failure by Dist. 211 officials to answer any of his questions and complaints with other than a denial raises even more questions.

Some of Chierico's arguments are very valid.

HE CRITICIZES the district for accepting a site for the new Schaumburg High School before learning whether or not the site was buildable. And that's what happened. The district had to negotiate with a developer to purchase another site for the school.

Chierico criticizes the board for reappointing Humphrey after he was defeated in an election. Humphrey was appointed to fill a vacancy, while other interested residents did ask consideration. The board ignored them.

Chierico complains that a former board member, who served as chairman of the architect selection committee, resigned from the board after recommending an architect and then became an officer of the architectural firm. The firm has been retained since 1963.

IF THE charges and complaints were contrived, it would be easy to understand the board's failure to comment. Answering unfounded charges gives them a dignity that indicates something might indeed be wrong.

But failing to answer complaints that do have foundation is even worse, and Dist. 211 officials are not able to deny Chierico's claims.

There is a way to get him to shut up, however. I hope he's elected.

Child Abuse — War Goes On

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—One or two children are killed by their parents every day in the United States.

An additional 10,000 children suffer physical abuse or neglect each year—victims of their own parents.

The abused children, most of them younger than three years old, are beaten with belts, burned with lighted cigarettes, deliberately starved, or slashed with razors.

The statistics and details were given to UPI by Dr. Vincent J. Fontana, director of pediatrics at St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Center, medical director of the New York Foundling Hospital, and a pioneer in the attempt to safeguard children from inhuman parental treatment.

"It's a symptom of the times," Dr. Fontana said, "part of the violence in this country and in the world. And it will continue."

"Abused and neglected children, if they survive, will strike out at society as future criminals, future murderers— and future child beaters."

He stressed that much more must be learned about what causes parental brutality. He said it crops up in all levels of society, but most particularly in urban slums where the problems and pressures are greatest. He said parents who brutalize their children generally are emotionally insecure and have financial and other problems. Alcoholism, perversion, broken homes, illegitimacy and prostitution all play their parts.

The pediatrician noted that all 50 states now have laws requiring doctors to report suspected cases of child abuse, a campaign he has been working on for almost a decade. He said this was not enough.

He explained that parents of abused children will use assumed names, and will switch from doctor to doctor, hospital to hospital, to avoid detection.

For this reason, Dr. Fontana said, much better communication is needed between doctors, police, child protection agencies and the courts. Lack of communication — and respect — among those involved, he charged, "has led to unnecessary deaths."

Dr. Fontana pointed out that the parents need help as much as the children they abuse—but the way to give it to them is not to return the child to such a home.

"Many of these parents," he said, "need to have the child removed from the home. Often they themselves are frightened at what they might do behind closed doors and shuttered windows. A mother often may be saying silently, 'Please take my child,' so she can catch her breath. She needs help to find out why she is doing what she is doing to a child."

"Parents need psychiatric help to learn what is leading them to maim, damage and kill their own child."

Child abuse is not a new ill, he said, adding:

"It was just 100 years ago that the New York Foundling Hospital was founded because of the high rate of infanticide."

"Mothers were killing infants and leaving them on the streets. The Sisters of Charity (Roman Catholic nuns) took over a brown stone and put a crib out front in the hope that mothers would leave babies in it—alive— instead of killing them."

"C'MON, KID, you're a duck, and ducks are supposed to like water, see? That means you're supposed to swim, leap into the pond and take to water like a duck takes to . . . er . . . uh. Whaddaya think you got those webbed feet for? C'mon, kid, paddle!!"

Soviets' New Sell

by DUSKO DODER

MOSCOW (UPI)—Do you know who makes "Soviet cheese?" Children in this atheistic country have the answer: God did.

They all saw it on national television — God milked a heavenly cow, made their favorite brand of cheese, punched holes in it, and before dropping it through the clouds to the earth, put the stamp "Sovietsky Sir" (Soviet cheese) on it.

The two-minute commercial praising the cheese's "heavenly" taste, shows better than anything else that the Soviet authorities are awakening to the fact that advertising is not "capitalist evil."

Indeed, the government newspaper Izvestia today called for greater efforts to develop advertising into an independent industry.

Advertising, said Izvestia, "is art plus science and not a simple business. The art of advertising is very complicated and, as any art, it requires knowledge."

The Americans, the authoritative newspaper said, thirst for profits so they "forgot the common sense" and flooded their mass media with ads. The Russians won't repeat that mistake, Izvestia said. "But we have to admit that advertising is a prime mover of commerce, and in the conditions of economic reform in this country, is also a prime mover of production efforts."

Television commercials here appeared several months ago and by now are a regular daily feature.

Interestingly enough, many of them employ religious connotations to impress on the viewers the high quality of products advertised. Thus, for instance, Soviet watches are so good that gods use them to keep time while meeting on Mt. Olympus.

Newspaper ads are still scarce. Recently an American airline company managed to place a few half-page ads in a Moscow evening newspaper advertising its Moscow to New York flights.

So far, all Soviet advertising is being directed by a special office of the ministry of trade but Izvestia indicated this would be changed soon.

"Advertising organizations should be absolutely independent and autonomous," Izvestia said.

Just What Line Does The Law Draw?

By CHARLOTTE MOULTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Supreme Court has been sharply divided over demonstrators' rights, but even the staunchest free speech champions among the justices would like to curb "noisy, marching, tramping, threatening picketers and demonstrators."

Unfortunately, in the court's view, the states do not have effective, properly drawn laws in this area. And the laws they have are not always fairly administered.

Consider the disturbance generated in Chicago in 1965 when Negro entertainer Dick Gregory led a chanting, placard-carrying crowd from the Loop area out to the home of Mayor Richard J. Daley. The group was disenchanted with School Superintendent Benjamin Willis, who was not desegregating public schools fast enough to suit them.

The march was obviously considered legal, since authorities sent along a city attorney, a police lieutenant, four sergeants and 40 policemen to prevent trouble.

Maintaining good order, the Gregory forces marched around Daley's home singing civil rights songs and bearing signs saying "Ben Willis must go, snake Daley also."

After a few hours, onlookers were estimated to number 1,200. Rocks and eggs were thrown and shouts such as "Nigger, get the hell out of here" were heard. Teen-agers in the back were crying, "Let's get them!"

Police told Gregory the situation was getting out of hand and asked him to lead his followers out of the area. After he refused this request five times, he and his group were arrested and taken away in two police vans.

A jury convicted them of disorderly conduct under a city ordinance which makes it an offense, among other things, to "collect in bodies or crowds for unlawful purposes, or for any purpose to the annoyance and disturbance of other persons."

Upholding the convictions, the Illinois Supreme Court interpreted the ordinance to permit arrest only where "there is an imminent threat of violence." The opinion suggested that Gregory's people were convicted for refusal to disperse on request rather than for the way they conducted their march.

In a brief opinion by Chief Justice Earl Warren, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously set aside the convictions for three reasons:

—There was no evidence of disorderly conduct, since the march fell well within the type of activity permitted in earlier Supreme Court rulings.

—Since the demonstrators were charged with disorderly conduct, not with refusing to obey a policeman, they were improperly convicted of an offense not charged.

—Part of the ordinance is unconstitutional broad and sweeping. Since it was read to the jury in its entirety and there is no way to tell on what sections the jurors relied, the convictions must fall.

Thus time-tested constitutional concepts governed a case originally expected to set new limits for peaceful demonstrations when unruly crowds threaten the marchers.

But Justices Hugo L. Black and William O. Douglas couldn't resist saying something more — in fact, 27 pages more — about the problem of preventing violence while at the same time allowing the free expression of ideas guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

In an opinion written by Black, they joined in an urgent call for better state laws against disturbing the peace — laws "narrowly drawn," so that people know what is allowed and what isn't.

"The dilemma revealed by this record is a crying example of a need for some such narrowly drawn law," Black said.

"These facts," he went on, ". . . point unerringly to one conclusion; namely, that when groups with diametrically opposed, deep-seated views are permitted to air their emotional grievances, side by side, on city streets, tranquility and order cannot be maintained even by the joint efforts of the finest and best officers and of those who desire to be the most law-abiding protectors of their grievances."

"No mandate in our Constitution leaves states and governmental units powerless to pass laws to protect the public from the kind of boisterous and threatening conduct that disturbs the tranquility of spots selected by the people either for homes, wherein they can escape the hurly-burly of the outside business and political world, or for public and other buildings that require peace and quiet, such as courts, libraries, schools and hospitals," the opinion said.

Black said the court started trying to get this idea across as far back as 1940. He labeled Chicago's ordinance a "meat ax" measure, which gathered in one comprehensive definition of disorderly conduct a number of words which may have many meanings. Some of these words could cover activity specifically protected by the First Amendment.

But statutes that would pass constitutional muster are not "impossible to draft," the opinion suggested. In an appeal to Americans generally, it added:

"And narrowly drawn statutes regulating these activities are not impossible to pass if the people who elect their legislators want them passed. Passage of such laws, however, like the passage of all other laws, constitutes in the final analysis a choice of policies by the elected representatives of the people."

"We believe," the opinion concluded, "that the homes of men, sometimes the last citadel of the tired, the weary and the sick, can be protected by government from noisy, marching, tramping, threatening picketers and demonstrators bent on filling the minds of men, women and children with fears of the unknown."

Could Be 'Ice Sea'

Anyone Here Seen Congress Lately?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first publisher to whom I submitted my novel, "Whatever Happened to What's His Name?" returned the manuscript along with a rejection slip.

"It is true," he wrote, "that there have been a couple of best-sellers in which the plots involved the mysterious disappearance of personages in Washington."

"Your attempt however, to write a suspense thriller about the disappearance of a vice president is poorly timed."

"We doubt the public would be interested in a book about a missing vice president when the entire U.S. Congress seems to have vanished."

Upon receiving this rejection notice, I realized I had been wasting my time writing fiction. Anyone can write a novel, but if I could solve the mystery of the disappearance of Congress I would have a real scoop on my hands.

I immediately slipped on my trench coat, stuck a press card in my hat and began making a few discreet inquiries around the Capital.

"Have you by any chance seen Congress this year?" I asked an elevator operator who was on duty just outside the Senate chamber.

"Now that you mention it, I don't believe I have," he replied.

"That's odd," I said. "Congress is supposed to have been in session since early in January. I wonder what could have happened to it."

"I can't imagine," the elevator man "but if Congress had been here I'm pretty sure I would have noticed it. You don't very often find Congress using the stairs."

A doorkeeper who overheard the conversation came over and said, "I understand you are looking for Congress. Perhaps I can be of some help."

"I distinctly remember seeing Congress one day a month or so ago. It came in and gave itself a 41 per cent pay raise."

"Then how come the elevator operator didn't notice it?" I said.

"That probably was his day off," the doorkeeper said.

It seems incredible that Congress could have given itself a pay raise and then vanished. Yet when I looked in the record to see what legislation it had passed, there was a convincing lack of evidence.

The cobwebs on the record also were an ominous sign.

Thus far my investigation has only led to dead ends. But I'll keep working on it.

The next step is to check on rumors that Congress is alive and living in Paris.

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, April 8, the 98th day of 1969 with 267 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1513 Ponce de Leon of Spain landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla., in his search for the Fountain of Youth.

In 1917 Australia and Hungary severed diplomatic relations with the United States, two days after the United States declared war against Germany.

In 1952 President Truman ordered government seizure of the steel industry to forestall a general strike.

In 1963 President Kennedy made Britain's Sir Winston Churchill an honorary citizen of the United States.

A thought for the day: Benjamin Franklin said, "He that goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing."

Health Talk Set

National, state and regional speakers will lead discussions on comprehensive mental health and mental retardation services Saturday at John Hersey High School auditorium, Arlington Heights.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. and is open to the public. It is sponsored by Clearbrook Community Association for the Retarded, Northwest Mental Health Association and St. Alexius Hospital.

Involving local agencies related to mental health and mental retardation and laying groundwork for future discussions are the purposes of the meeting.

Speakers for the evening include Thomas Tucker, a member of President Nixon's Panel on Retardation and past president of the National Association for Retarded Children.

Joseph B. Lehmann is also scheduled to speaking. He is a special consultant on Community Mental Health Services with the Illinois Department of Mental Health and is a former executive of the international CARE organization.

ACTING AS the moderator will be Dr. Sheldon S. Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources.

Respondents from the local community will be Marshall Bennett, president of St. Alexius Hospital's Lay Advisory Board, and George Grimelli, president of Clearbrook Community Association for the Retarded.

Other respondents include William W. Radtke, president of the Northwest Mental Health Association, and John J. Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization.

'Church Today' Is Topic

The Rev. Edgar H.S. Chandler will discuss "The Church Today" during a lecture at Maine South High School at 8 p.m. April 15.

The lecture is the seventh in the current series on "The American Identity Crisis" co-sponsored by the Maine Adult Evening School and the Forest Hospital Foundation. The school is located at 111 Dee Road, Park Ridge. The hospital is a private psychiatric hospital in Des Plaines.

Reverend Chandler is the former executive director of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago and is presently executive director of the Council of Churches in Worcester, Mass. He did graduate study at Harvard University and was ordained in the Congregational ministry.

During World War II, Reverend Chandler served as senior chaplain of the European fleets. He was director of Refugee Services for the World Council of Churches in Geneva from 1949 to 1960. He left that position to become executive director of the Church Federation of Greater Chicago, a position he held until last fall.

AMONG his many supplementary assignments, Reverend Chandler was an observer delegate to the fourth session of II Vatican Council, representing the International Congregational Council. He is the author of the book, "The High Tower of Refuge," and has numerous published articles.

This is the third year Maine Adult Evening School and the Forest Hospital Foundation are co-sponsoring this series at the school. Morris B. Squire, administrator of Forest Hospital, will serve as moderator for the program.

Admission to the lecture is $1.50 for adults, $1 for students. Additional information can be obtained by calling Forest Hospital, 827-8811.

Fashions Are Feminine, Fun

CANOPIED POTS OF DAISIES brought Spring '69 into Itasca Country Club last week for a luncheon-show presented by Mount Prospect Chapter of Infant Welfare. Mrs.

Robert Magnus, Mrs. Jack Morgan and Mrs. Edward Kraljic, luncheon chairman, paused in the lobby before the show.

It may have been April Fool's Day, but the models in long pants had no intentions of fooling anyone. Wearing the new pant dresses designed for at home and formal wear, they looked strictly feminine.

Since pant dresses and suits are the biggest fashion innovation of the year, Margie's Bridals, Inc. of Golf Mill included a liberal sprinkling of these ensembles in the show, "Showers of Fashion," presented last week for members and friends of the Mount Prospect Center of the Infant Welfare Society.

White crepe, lavishly trimmed with golden coins at the partial halter neckline and at the bottom of the wide-legged trousers, was one of the selections that received a big hand from the audience. Another, also in white, featured a see-through midriff of open lattice work. Chiffons, in solids and prints, were also used for these ladylike versions of the pant dress.

DRESSES, TOO, WERE extremely feminine. Many featured jeweled necklines and jeweled belts. Long, full sleeves were also new, as were the tulip petal necklines and hemlines, an effect achieved from the rippling of soft pleats. Ruffles in the baby doll and the Victorian look were other fashion features of the show, and the keyhole neckline, noted on one dress, may be returning to the fashion scene.

All fashions were worn by professional models except for one "high fashion" gown that incorporated all the highlights of the spring fashions. Modeling this creation, which featured a plunge neckline, balloon sleeves and nylon streamers, was Mrs. Edward G. Schoeneberger, a past president of the Infant Welfare chapter. Pat's "just-for-fun" gown had a bathroom plunger as the neckline zipper tab, colorful balloons shaping the capped sleeves and old nylon stockings draped as streamers.

The show, held in Itasca Country Club, was preceded by a luncheon.

The Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare is one of three area groups who contribute both service and funds to the Society. Mrs. Robert Trochuck is president of the Mount Prospect Center; Mrs. Robert Frederick is president of the Arlington Heights Center; and Mrs. William L. Morris is president of the Palatine Center.

A Hat for Painting

Few hairdressers recommend shampooing with turpentine or mineral spirits—even after you paint a ceiling. The National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests you take a tip from the pro's and always don a protective hat to top off your painting wardrobe. Plastic shower caps are ideal for such use since they completely cover your hair and are so easy to clean.

Check Fire Insurance

Insurance policies should be reviewed every three to five years. Fire insurance should be increased, to keep pace with the rising cost of replacement of the house and its contents. While you're at it, make an inventory of the contents of your home. This will help you to determine what it would cost to replace your belongings at today's prices.

ALTHOUGH THERE'S MORE than one sex wearing long pants these days, these ladies haven't made a mistake. They are models who used the men's facilities for dressing, and they're saving their smiles for the runway.

AAUW Panel Will Answer: What's Behind Public Ed?

The "Politics of Public Education" study group will present this Thursday's program for the Arlington Heights Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Using the press conference format members of the group will explore the question "Who and what influences public education?" by presenting a panel of "experts" being questioned by representatives of John Q. Public.

This is the second year of study for this group, and through reading and discussion its members have been seeking information about the role of education in politics, influences of forces such as big business and organized teacher groups, and the roles of local and national government in education.

OUTSIDE SPEAKERS have given the group insight into problems and issues. Among them have been Mrs. Eugenia

Chapman, state legislator, speaking on education and legislation; Robert Bates, District 25 school board member, speaking on the role of the local school board in education; Jack Martin, Assistant to the Superintendent, District 214, speaking on the role of the administrator in education; and Robert Staley, teacher at Forest View High School, speaking on organized teachers' groups.

Participating in the discussion will be Mrs. Robert Staley, Mrs. A. Rabchuk, Mrs. M. Birsinger, and Miss Sabra Patterson, all of Arlington Heights; Mrs. C. F. Prime Jr., and Mrs. J. W. Wanner, both of Mount Prospect; and Mrs. R. Jacks of Des Plaines.

AAUW meets at Pioneer Park Fieldhouse, 500 S. Fernandez. The coffee hour begins at 7:45 p.m. with the program at 8:30 p.m. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Harold Schaefer, membership chairman, 392-4839. AAUW is open to any graduate of an accredited college or university registered with the AAUW office in Washington, D.C.

What To Do with Grandma's Trash

"What to do with what Grandma threw out" is the title of a talk to be given by Mrs. Gordon Ward of Arlington Heights. It will be presented to Our Lady of the Wayside Women's Club, Arlington Heights, at the regular monthly meeting Thursday, April 10, at 8:30 p.m. in the Junior High Auditorium.

Mrs. Ward, a member of the Salt Creek Quilters, has developed her interest in antiques into a talent for creating attractive home accessories from objects that less imaginative people would discard as worthless. She will demonstrate with colored slides the results of restoring old objects into items of value for the home.

TEA HOSTESSES FOR the evening will be members of the decorating and Girl Scout committees, headed by Mrs. James Collins and Mrs. John Shanley.

In other club news, a shopping day at Dominick's Food Store has been planned as the April project of the ways and means committee. Members of the parish and their friends, shopping at any Dominick's store Wednesday, April 16, can help the club realize a percentage of the purchases by turning in a signed benefit ticket at the checkout counter specifying that proceeds are for the parish. Tickets are being distributed by members of the ways and means committee.

Daycare Experiment Is 'Homelike'

BY PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Behind the iron curtain and in some other nations, working mothers park their children at government-run daycare centers.

In Switzerland, some mothers take the children along to office or plant, depositing them at company-run childcare facilities. Mothers and children visit at lunchtime.

In America, it's do the best you can and cross your fingers when it comes to childcare problems facing working moms.

Now Uncle Sam knows that and in one attempt to crack this nut has earmarked around $1 million in the search for a new and better approach.

Some of the money is being spent this year under the direction of Mrs. Edmond Phillips, associate professor of social work at Washington University in St. Louis.

THE EXPERIMENTAL program she's directing is taking place in Wellston, Mo. What's different about it: Child care companions, in addition to regular daycare staffers.

The two man-and-woman teams, older persons who love youngsters, provide a home away from home for the children. They supplement classwork in homelike rooms furnished with rocking chairs, lamps, rugs and even pets.

In an interview, Mrs. Phillips said the companions bolster the child's security and sense of belonging while away from his family. Some are away from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The companions also take the children shopping, allowing enough time to inspect bugs or buds, if the child is so inclined.

If the experiment's timetable is met, Hilltop Center (name of the facility) will take two-year-olds in June. In September, after school care for children through 12 will be provided.

"THE NEED for such centers is tremendous," Mrs. Phillips said.

"Coming home to an empty house isn't what these children need. And casually dropping by a community-sponsored recreation center isn't the answer either.

"They need to go to a place where they will be checked up on if they don't show up, a place with activity and a chance to do nothing—if they feel like it—in a homelike atmosphere."

Such places are part of her dream to keep the "latch-key kids" from becoming children of the streets.

What's learned at Hilltop will be reported back to the children's bureau, under whose authority the grant was made.

How long it takes for any of the recommendations to take shape nationwide is anyone's guess.

"It can't happen too soon," Mrs. Phillips said. "We have only children to save."

Salad Bar Lunch, Biblical Flowers

Mrs. Edna C. Crumbaugh of Clarendon Hills, flower arranger and lecturer, will speak on "Plants of the Prophets," a historical review of Biblical flowers at the April 9 meeting of the Garden Club of Mount Prospect.

The meeting is the annual spring salad bar luncheon and will be held in the Mount Prospect Community Center at 12:30 p.m. There will be a guest fee.

The following officers will be installed: Mrs. Jerome A. Thelander, president; Mrs. Ray K. Lohse, first vice-president; Mrs. William Balaz, second vice-president; Mrs. Raymond Bond, recording secretary; Mrs. J. J. Kaiser, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur F. Jaehnke, treasurer.

HOSTESSES ARE Mrs. Warren Pursell, Mrs. David Toeppen, Mrs. Richard Rehuesch, Mrs. Emil Fick and Mrs. Robert Haugh.

Flower arrangements for the Mount Prospect Public Library during the month of April will be made by Mrs. Charles Greenslade and Mrs. Allen Julin.

It's Play Ball in Major Leagues

St. Louis to Top Oakland in World Series?

IT'S ALL coming down to the nitty-gritty for major league baseball players. Starting today major league players will be no longer playing for fun-Z's — today is the opening day of the season.

For the past two months spring training has been going on in Florida and Arizona. For the rookies, spring training is the time to prove their skills to the upper echelon. To the aging veterans, it is a time to show that experience can overcome youth.

To the bona fide super-star, or just plain star, it is a time to work slowly into shape, preparing for the long 162-game season ahead.

Today many of the aspiring youngsters and struggling oldsters are gone — and some have stayed. And, of course, the stars and super-stars are supposedly ready.

Opening day is usually a festive occasion in major league towns across the country and if the home team wins on opening day many fans begin to feel that this is their year. Of course, it usually isn't. Robin Roberts, Jack Sanford, Art Mahaffey, Jim Bunning and Chris Short have won opening day games for the Philadelphia Phillies for years but the Phils have not won a pennant since 1950.

Naturally, for some teams 1969 will be their year and, naturally enough, for some teams 1969 won't be the year. The opening day fad is to predict which teams will have THE year and so in keeping with tradition, here goes:

AMERICAN LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

The Detroit Tigers won the pennant, and the World Series, last year mostly on the right arm of Denny McLain who won 31 games. It seems unlikely, however, that McLain will repeat his unforgettable performance so the Tigers have to find about 10 wins somewhere this year. Detroit is remarkably weak at second, short and third, and first basemen Norm Cash and Al Kaline are getting along in years. The outfield is solid with Willie Horton, Mickey Stanley and Jim Northrup.

The Baltimore Orioles saw Jim Hardin, Tom Phoebus and Dave McNally develop as top notch pitchers in 1968. Mike Cuellar, acquired from Houston, should be an added boost on the staff. The Orioles are stronger in the infield than Detroit and if Frank Robinson can make a comeback and rookie Merv Rettenmund comes through as expected, Baltimore will have as good an outfield as the Tigers.

Boston has plenty of power in Ken Harrelson and Carl Yastrzemski but the Red Sox still need a comeback by George Scott who will have the added difficulty of learning a new position (third base) as well as bring up his .171 batting average. Pitchers Ray Culp, Dick Ellsworth and Jim Lonborg still have not convinced the skeptics.

Cleveland and New York have excellent pitching but not much hitting to go with the hurlers. New York's best are Mel Stottlemyre, Stan Bahnsen and Arlington High grad Fritz Peterson. Each had an earned run average under 2.65.

Cleveland's mainstays are Luis Tiant, Sam McDowell, Stan Williams and Sonny Siebert, all of whom had an ERA under 3.00 last year.

Cleveland only hit .234 as a team last year and the Yanks hit a horrible .214 and now Mickey Mantle is gone. There are going to be a lot of 2-1 games again this season.

Washington has powerful Frank Howard and hopes of Mike Epstein to reach his potential but not much else.

The Tigers just won't have enough to hold off the improving Orioles while three places will be wide open with Washington taking the cellar spot going away.

1, Baltimore; 2, Detroit; 3, Boston; 4, Cleveland; 5, New York; 6, Washington.

(Western Division)

The American League Western Division is by far the weakest in the major leagues. Oakland had the only winning record in this group and among the six teams in the West, two are expansion clubs.

Oakland has a young club which is full of potential. Opposing managers envy Hank Bauer who has such budding stars as Bert Campaneris and Sal Bando in the infield, Rick Monday and Reggie Jackson in the outfield, and Jim "Catfish" Hunter, John "Blue Moon" Odum, Jim Nash and Chuck Dobson on the mound. The Athletics have five pitchers who won in double figures last season and the A's were the best hitting team in the loop. Oakland did lose its bullpen in the expansion draft and this could be felt.

Minnesota is loaded with 'name' players but most are starting to slide down the other side of the hill — players like Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison, John Roseboro and Ron Perranoski. The Twins have a pair of excellent pitchers in Dean Chance and Jim Kaat but the bullpen is weak. Outfielder Tony Oliva and second baseman Rod Carew are bona fide All-Stars. There is enough here to make Billy Martin Manager of the Year or unemployed.

California has one of the best shortstops in the game in Jim Fregosi and a potential star in Rick Reichardt but the pitching staff didn't rate otwell in the Year of the Pitcher (1968). The Angels need help at first and third base desperately.

The Chicago White Sox can rise once again if the pitchers' arms hold up. Gary Peters, Joel Horlen, Tommy John, Wilbur Wood and Cisco Carlos have all had good seasons but slipped last year. Once again the Sox will have a powder-puff attack but

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

manager Al Lopez has won with such an attack before.

As for Seattle and Kansas City it is hard to see how they will win a game unless it comes against each other.

It appears that Oakland's rising team should finish higher than Minnesota's falling Twins. California and Chicago will battle it out for third place and the cellar fight should be the most contested battle of all.

1, Oakland; 2, Minnesota; 3, Chicago; 4, California; 5, Seattle; 6, Kansas City.

NATIONAL LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

No National League team has won three straight pennants in many a moon but it seems difficult to pick against the St. Louis Cardinals to do it this year. Sorry about that, Cub fans.

The Cardinals started out with plenty of talent and the other clubs have been nice enough to help the Cards by giving them Joe Torre, Vada Pinson and Dave Giusti in trades. The team is solid from top to bottom with an infield of Torre, Julian Javier, Dal Maxvill and Mike Shannon, an outfield of Lou Brock, Curt Flood and Pinson, a standout catcher in Tim McCarver and a good pitching staff in Bob Gibson, Nelson Briles, Steve Carlton, Ray Washburn and Giusti.

The Cub infield of Ernie Banks, Glenn Beckert, Don Kessinger and Ron Santo is the best in baseball but Billy Williams is the only reliable outfielder. Ferguson Jenkins is the mainstay of the pitching staff and Leo Durocher is counting on Ken Holtzman and Joe Niekro for good seasons. Ted Abernathy and Phil Regan make a standout bullpen.

Age is starting to catch up on Pittsburgh as Bill Mazeroski, Roberto Clemente, Jim Bunning and Bob Veale had off-years last season. Clemente had an off year for HIM. He still hit .291. Matty Alou should threaten for the batting crown again and pitchers Steve Blass and Bob Moose are tough to hit. It looks like the Pirates might have to be overhauled after this season because no less than eight players have seen their 30th birthday.

The New York Mets have three of the finest young pitchers in the loop in Jerry Koosman, Tom Seaver and Nolan Ryan but the hitting is sporadic. It's about time for Ron Swoboda to show if he can really hit homers in the Big Time.

The Philadelphia Phillies have two of the better rookies around in shortstop Don Money and centerfielder Larry Hise. Add this pair to Richie Allen and John Callison and it makes a respectable attack — if all goes well. Allen is due for the really big season that everyone has been waiting for. The best pitchers are Chris Short, Woody Fryman and Rick Wise.

Montreal made out better than any other expansion team landing such players as Rusty Staub, Maury Wills, Manny Mota and Mack Jones. The pitching will be weak, however.

The Cards are the class of the Eastern Division with the Cubs easily second. You can pick the remaining finishes out of a hat.

1, St. Louis; 2, Chicago; 3, Philadelphia; 4, New York; 5, Pittsburgh; 6, Montreal.
(Western Division)

The San Francisco Giants are the perennial second-place finishers and 1969 won't be any different.

The Giants still have Willie McCovey, Jim Ray Hart and, of course, Willie Mays, to hit the ball over buildings but there aren't enough baserunners when they do. The pitching staff is solid in Juan Marichal, Gaylord Perry, Mike McCormick and Ray Sadecki.

But the Giants will finish second — behind Cincinnati.

The Redlegs have the best hitting team in baseball with Lee May (.290 and 22 homers), Tony Perez (.282 and 18), Alex Johnson (.312), Pete Rose (.335) and John Bench (.275 and 15). Four Red pitchers won in double figures last year and should be just as good this season.

The Braves have their usual fine hitting attack and usual unreliable pitching staff; the Dodgers have the usual fine pitching and usual poor hitting.

Houston will be threatening the Dodgers for fourth place while San Diego won't be threatening anybody.

1, Cincinnati; 2, San Francisco; 3, Atlanta; 4, Los Angeles; 5, Houston; 6, San Diego.

EPILOGUE

The notable prize winners in the American League will be Tony Oliva of Minnesota in batting average, Willi Horton of Detroit in homers, Dean Chance of Minnesota in pitching, Merv Rettenmund of Baltimore will be the Rookie of the Year and Reggie Jackson of Oakland will be the Most Valuable Player.

The notable winners in the National League will be Pete Rose of Cincinnati in batting average, Richie Allen of Philadelphia in homers, Juan Marichal of San Francisco in pitching, Larry Hise of Philadelphia will be the rookie of the year and Pete Rose will be the Most Valuable Player.

In the playoffs Oakland will defeat Baltimore for the American League championship and St. Louis will defeat Cincinnati for the National League championship.

In the World Series St. Louis will defeat Oakland four games to two.
Says I, anyway.

Palatine A.D. Bernie Mitchell

30 Years As Coach, Teacher...

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

When you have such questions to ask such as "Are high schools and high school athletics really in trouble?" or "Has America's youth changed so much over the years?" you seek a man who has been involved with high schools, athletics and youth for many years.

And such a man is Bernie Mitchell, though he certainly would not admit it himself. "Aw, come on," he'll say, "my opinions are just my own. They don't mean that much. Don't go and write up what I have to say and put it in the paper."

Contrary to what he says, Bernie Mitchell's opinions do mean something because they are based on 30 years of coaching and teaching.

MITCHELL, NOW Palatine High's athletic director, was at Rock Falls High School for six years, Sterling for 15 years, Fresno (Calif.) for four years, Fort Myers (Fla.) for three years and this is his second year in the Palatine area.

Though he has coached and taught in five wide-spread areas and has seen and been involved with youth in other areas, Mitchell feels that high school students are very much the same.

"In some areas you'll have kids who look tough and spit between their teeth and all," Mitchell said, "and then you'll have kids that look like clean, good students. But underneath and fundamentally, students are the same everywhere."

ACCORDING TO Mitchell, there is a difference in the interest for athletics in different areas.

"In a small community where you have one school the interest is greater," he said. "In the one-school community the athletes' fathers probably attended the school and their fathers' fathers attended the same school. In that way you have more adult interest. The whole community is interested in the school's athletics."

"Then you have some hotbeds like Alabama and Texas where a sport like football is almost a religion."

"AROUND THIS area," Mitchell went on, "the interest is not as great as in the one-school community. Most of the fathers in this area commute on the train and they don't see their kids too often. (Mitchell uses kids not in a derogatory manner but it is easier to say kids than young men and women, which is exactly how he refers to the youth). The father has a long ride on the commuter, works hard during the day and then has a long ride home. He's gone before the kid gets up in the morning and he only gets to see his kid a couple of hours at night. It is difficult for him to stay really interested in athletics."

"We have our football games on Saturday afternoon and the fathers here would like to sit around the house and relax and watch O. J. Simpson on TV rather than sit out on the hard bleachers all afternoon."

"But considering the circumstances the parents still keep an interest in their kids and the kids' athletics in this area."

Mitchell pointed out that big-city athletics and suburban athletics are not much different in certain locations. "Your athletics in Los Angeles have the same familiar quality as in Chicago and your Los Angeles suburbs have the same quality as the Chicago suburbs."

IN DIFFERENT AREAS of the country coaches have been known to try to convince their boys that they themselves are tougher because of their locality. A Pittsburgh coach will tell his boys they are tougher because they come from a rugged community. A farming community coach will tell his boys they are tougher than the city boy because his boys are more outdoors types. Mitchell did not go along with this type of approach with his boys when he was coaching.

"You can't fool these boys anymore," Mitchell said. "I think some coaches spend too much time on hokey-pokey. I've always felt that I should be honest and fair with my boys."

"I think that a coach should show his boys that he has something to teach them. He should convince his boys that athletics can be a help to the boys in later life. The coach should make his boys believe in him. If the coach can do that, today's kids will do anything for him."

"TO ME A FOOTBALL game or a basketball game or any other sport is won in practice. I believe that a boy will play how he practices. And none of this hokey-pokey is going to help a boy when he's out on that field."

Bill Gleason, Chicago columnist, has written that high schools and high school athletics are in trouble. The columnist says that the hoods are taking over the schools and that today's student body looks up to the hood more than the athlete. Mitchell does not agree.

"A year ago I was really concerned about the long hair, the dopes and the junkies," he said. "But now that I look back I can see that rum-dums have always been present in our schools."

"Ten years ago the big thing was black leather jackets, black boots and motorcycles. And in my high school days we had our rum-dums too."

"Today the adults are concerned about our youth and wonder about our future. But I think the main reason why the adults are more concerned is because they see these rum-dums all the time on TV."

"I THINK THAT TV, and newspapers, have hurt our youth. In every generation you have your attention seekers. Today the kids see other kids getting attention on TV because the kids on TV have the long hair and take dope and burn their draft cards. So the attention seeker who doesn't want to work and gain attention in athletics, looks at the TV and says, 'There's a way to get attention,' so then he goes out and grows his hair, a beard, wears beads and burns his draft card."

"The adults see all this on TV, too, and they become concerned. Well, sometimes the adults forget that they had rum-dums in their generation too."

"Now take the war in Vietnam," Mitchell continued. "Nobody likes war. I don't like war. I can understand why a kid doesn't want to go in the Army. Who wants to go in the Army? But you'll find when the kids' numbers come up in the draft, almost all of them step forward and go in the Army — just the same way other generations did."

"Adults must not forget that most of these boys fulfill their duty and go in the Army. But who knows about it? The kids who get the attention on TV or in the papers are the kids who burn their draft cards — not the ones who step forward and go in the Army."

"I'LL TELL YOU this. If we had a full-scale war you'd see a majority of these boys enlisting. From my experience with today's kids I know that this is what they would do."

And getting back to the question: "Are high schools and high school athletics in trouble?"

"No," says Mitchell. "The hoods are not taking over the schools and the kids aren't looking up to them. Let me use an example. We had a basketball game here and then a dance afterward. We had a bunch of long-haired kids come to the dance and they tried to mix in with the other kids who were at the game and stayed for the dance. And after a while the clean-cut kids left the dance and let the long-haired kids by themselves. During the dance the clean-cut kids hardly associated with the rum-dums."

"That's why I don't think that the clean-cut high school kids are looking up to the rum-dums."

"SECONDLY, HIGH school athletics are not in trouble because of the hoods. Look how many kids in schools participate in athletics. You take all the football, basketball and baseball players, track men and all the others; you take all the levels (varsity, junior varsity, sophomore, freshman 'A' and freshman 'B') and the girls in cheerleading and drill teams and all, and you have, oh, about 40 per cent of the student body taking part in athletics."

"No, high school athletics are not in trouble."

Mitchell is quick to defend the majority of young people in America.

"Today's kids are better educated. They've had better teaching and coaching because there are more good teachers and coaches. People try to tell me that high schools aren't any good. Well who do they think made today's scientists who are getting men on the moon."

"TODAY'S KIDS are good kids. Who do you think make up the Peace Corps and Vista and other organizations? It's the kids, that's who. I'm NOT ready to sell our kids out. There are too many good ones."

"I've had offers to coach on the college level in the past and I turned it down because at the time a high school coach was making better money than the college coaches."

"Sometimes I regret having turned down the offers. But there are times when I look back and I don't regret it."

"Working with kids has been a great experience — something that I wouldn't trade for anything else in the world."

Card Golfers Inexperienced

Arlington coach Tom Walthouse accomplished a coaching rarity last year — he guided championship teams in two different sports, gymnastics and golf.

And this year the Card mentor is hoping for a repeat of last year's glory. His gymnastics team has completed its half of the deal, winning the Mid-Suburban League gym crown, not to mention the district and state titles. Now — starting this afternoon against Maine West — it's the golf squad's MSL championship.

And does Walthouse believe the Cards can do it, even though only one letterman is returning off last year's team?

"We're thinking big, of course," says the Arlington mentor. "But this is one of those things where we'll just have to wait and see. I hope we can build ourselves up to being contenders for the conference."

The basis of this hope is the sole returning letterman, senior Rich Armour, one of last year's better linksters. Also expected by the coach to rate as a varsity starter are junior Brad O'Berry and sophomore Jack VanVeen.

After that, though, the fight for the other place on the squad should be a real battle. "I've got several boys who might be playing in that spot. There's one freshman in particular showing very good ability — he hits an awful sweet ball. "But," Walthouse adds, "he is a freshman, so he's never seen competition before."

The Card effort will be suffering just a bit at the start of the season, mainly because of the weather — Walthouse's men have been unable to get outside yet for practice. But the coach himself has been unable to make many practices this season — for the past two weeks he's been in Europe at the International Gymnastics Federation Symposium, one of three Americans invited.

But, then, that's the price a coach has to pay for being successful — and hopefully that gym success will rub off on Tom Walthouse's golfers.

This figure represents the combined salaries of the applicants placed through the efforts of our staff members. Our firm is new and comparatively unknown. Our staff is neither unknown nor new to our field. With a total staff of 9 employees we can call upon 120 YEARS of combined experience in Personnel, Management, Manufacturing, and Engineering! Our service is based on several principles derived from these many years of experience:

- 1) Companies not applicants, pay our fees. Over 90% of our business originates with companies having previously dealt with our staff members.
- 2) Being aware of the general reluctance of a job seeker to utilize an "Agency", references attesting to the integrity and quality of our services are available to all interested applicants. These references include companies as well as individuals.
- 3) Our most valuable asset is time. We never waste it; whether it is yours, ours, or a company's.
- 4) Honesty as opposed to Salesmanship seems a much slower way to grow in our business. We prefer the slow and solid pace that honesty seems to afford.
- 5) All advertising shall be specific and factual when representing any given position we are attempting to fill. This will continue to be true despite the obvious temptations to exaggerate in order to attract applicants.
- 6) Both companies and applicants will receive similar responses when reviewed. If we feel our services inadequate to your needs, we will not only indicate this but explain the reasons.

If after examining the premise on which our firm has been established you feel it is to our mutual advantage to talk, we would welcome your interest and contact.
